

DISPLAY SYSTEM

ABSTRACT

In one embodiment the invention comprises a display device including at least one illuminant condition sensor. The illuminant condition sensor can provide feedback to the display device regarding the illuminant conditions surrounding the display. Alternatively, the output of the illuminant condition sensor can provide input to a color management module. Either way, illuminant condition information can be provided so that the display device renders color in a manner that accounts for illuminant conditions.

5

10

15